F. HAYDN WILLIAMS
NAMED DEPUTY ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE (ISA)

The appointment of F. Haydn Williams to be a Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs was announced today by the Department of Defense.

In his new position, Mr. Williams is responsible for the coordination of National Security Council affairs and long-range defense planning in the international field.

Since 1954 Mr. Williams has been Associate Dean and an Associate Professor at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, a graduate school of international affairs, administered by Tufts University in cooperation with Harvard University. Before joining the staff at the Fletcher School he was a member of the faculty at the University of Washington, Seattle, Washington.

Mr. Williams served from 1941 to 1946 first with Pan American Airways and then with the United States Navy in the North, South and Central Pacific and Asiatic Theaters.

Mr. Williams' family home is in Berkeley, California, where he received his early education, including an A. B. degree from the University of California. He received A. M. and Ph.D. degrees from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy.
